It must be difficult enough that one of the most recognizable faces on Twitch, the surveillance streamer finds themselves under from fans and the same detractors mean that many streamers tend to hide certain details about their private lives from their fans. For Pokimane, this may include a secret boyfriend she never mentioned on camera, at least according to YouTuber LeafyIsHere. (Photo: Pokimane) In a video titled Content Nuke: Pokimane, the YouTuber expresses her annoyedness towards the popular streamer and makes seemingly unfounded allegations that she hid her boyfriend from her fan base. If you ever happen to come across one of her big-time fans on the way to the grocery store or whatnot, be sure to remind them that she has a boyfriend, Leafy states. Because I think they really enjoyed hearing that little piece of information. The reaction to this video is significant and it has accumulated just under 1.8 million views at the time of writing this article. The #PokimaneBoyfriend quickly became a trend on Twitter, and even Pokimane herself joined in the fun. However, since this video broke unfounded rumors, Pokimane's Twitch has seen the loss of new subscribers. Although not serious, Pokimane's number of new subscribers to Twitch has been below average every day since the video's release. In fact, while late last month pokimane brought in figures of more than 11,000 new subscribers on two occasions streamer has not yet broken 5 thousand in a since that time. (Photo: Social Blade) With the reputation of the members watching Pokimane, many Twitch fans are unhappy with the idea of a streamer having a romantic partner. In fact, some fans expressed their feelings when tricked very enthusiastically on Twitter. For whether or not Pokimane actually has a boyfriend remains to be seen. But from what we can see, there is definitely reason to remain silent if this streamer finds a partner. Pokimane Sub Count in the last 30 days with daily subscription problems for pokimane. Created in 0.0556 seconds. Copyright 2015-2021 TwitchStats. TOS Twitch is clearly the live streaming platform of choice for gamers. Twitch's top streamers can make a full-time living on the platform, and many have built huge fan bases. Favorite streamers can make money in a variety of ways, but one of the most popular methods is through their channel subscribers. The advantage of signing up for a Twitch streamer is that it is a form of period of income. A fan of a channel can choose to subscribe to that channel if the steamer is a Twitch Agent or Partner. The main reason you subscribe to your streamer's channel is to show a sign of support. You are effectively agreed to make them a regular monthly donation. This is different from following someone where no money changes hands. You can also use the tool below to check the Number of Twitch Streamer Extras. What does the subscriber get in return? While most people subscribe to the channel to support a favorite streamer, in return they get some privileges. The most common ones are: Emoji - these are unique emojis for each Twitch channel, which subscribers can use in any channel chat room. Although Twitch Affiliates can only create one touch symbol, Twitch Partners can design significantly more. Subscriber badge - when a subscriber chats in a chat room, a special subscriber badge appears next to their name. Despite having a subscriber badge streamer can customize them if they choose. Special Alerts - Special alerts visible to everyone who sees the stream every time a subscriber subscribes publicly the username of the subscriber and the duration of the subscription to date. Subscribers can also send custom messages to the streamer. Exclusive chatrooms - some streamers create extra chat rooms for their subscribers, which are especially useful for large channels, where comments can quickly disappear from the screen because of the number of viewers presenting Exclusive Contests - some streamers hold subscription-only contests, with premium prizes, compared to what they offer their general viewers. See no ads - many channels reward their subscribers by watching no Twitch Subscription Tiers Twitch ads originally introduced subscriptions at $4.99 per month, holding half and paying the other half to streamers. However, Twitch has arranged with some of the more popular broadcasters and some on this list keep 60 to 100% of their subscriptions. In mid-2017, Twitch expanded their registration system. Although the majority of people still pay an extra $4.99, they now have the option of $9.99 (Level 2) or $24.00 (Level 3). Streamers often list per-tier per-subscriber privileges on their channel pages. People can choose to pay for a monthly subscription or in blocks of three or six months. How many subscribers does your favorite streamer have? Twitch doesn't publicize subscribers as follows. You won't find your channel's subscribers, just by searching on their channel page. However, we offer a tool that allows you to discover how many subscribers your favorite streamers have. Just enter the username of a streamer in the box below to find out how many subscribers they have. So who are the Twitch streamers with the most streamers? We recently checked the most popular Twitch streamers, in terms of subscriber numbers. Keep in mind that these numbers are constantly changing so that the exact number of subscribers will vary by the time you read this. We've focused on individual streamers on this list, ignoring the company and game company's streaming accounts. Subscriber Counts Top 10 Twitch Streamers: 1. Ninja Twitch Stream: twitch.tv/ninja Ninja is a Twitch streamer and American Internet character. His real name is Richard Tyler Blevins. He topped the league table for most Twitch subscribers and most Twitch followers. Ninja has been playing professional video games since 2009, initially playing Halo 3 for different eSports teams. He began streaming in 2011, playing H1Z1. He joined Luminosity Gaming in 2017. When he started streaming Fortnite, his viewer numbers skyrocketed. In April 2018, during Ninja Vegas 2018, Ninja set a Twitch record, with 667,000 live viewers. In June 2018, Ninja announced a partnership with Red Bull eSports, and challenged fans to play him at a special Fortnite event called Red Bull Rise Till Dawn in Chicago. He became the first eSports player to appear on cover of ESPN The Magazine in September 2018. In August 2019, Ninja left Twitch for exclusive broadcast on Microsoft Microsoft Although he brought many of his followers to Mixer, Twitch left his old channel inactive, and most of his followers continued to follow his inactive account. However, by July 2020, Microsoft unexpectedly closed Mixer. This leaves Ninja, and his Twitch friends in exile, in the dark. Since there was no longer an exclusive contract with Mixer, Ninja later played elsewhere, initially on YouTube Gaming. However, in September 2020, he signed a five-year exclusive deal to return to Twitch. He is currently streaming on the platform again and has now built up his followers to 16 million followers. 2. Tfue Twitch Stream: twitch.tv/tfue With the passing of Ninja and Shroud to Mixer, American streamer Turner Ellis Tenney (aka Tfue) took over the mantle as Twitch's most popular streamer. He is best known for playing Fortnite and is considered one of the best players in that game. He has won numerous Fortnite tournaments, including the SuperGames Charity Tournament. He joined FaZe Clan, a professional eSports organization, in 2018, although he took part in legal action against them in 2019. Tfue had controversial moments when streaming on Twitch. In 2018, Twitch banned him for 30 days after saying a supposedly racist language, though Twitch later reversed the ban after determining he was not racist using the word. A year later, Tfue again said a racial slur while streaming, but Twitch did not ban him. 3. Shroud Twitch Stream: twitch.tv/shroud Shroud, aka Michael Grzesiek, is a Canadian streamer and former Professional Counter-Strike: Global Offensive (CS: GO) player. He signed for Cloud 9 in August 2014, helping to move Cloud 9 to second place at ESL One Cologne 2017 and first place in the ESL pro league season 4 in 2016. He left professional eSports in April 2018. After moving to a full-time streamer, Shroud played a variety of games. On March 10, 2019, he gained 100,000 Twitch subscribers and reached another 14,000 the next day. He continued streaming full-time on Twitch until October 2019. On October 24, 2019, Shroud officially announced that he would be following Ninja and moving from Twitch to the exclusive Mixer. However, Microsoft closed Mixer in June 2020. In August 2020, Shroud announced his return to Twitch, where he returned to air for the first time the next day. His first live stream back that day peaked at more than 516,000 simultaneous viewers. 4. Myth Twitch Stream: Twitch.tv/myth Ali Kabbani is better known as Myth to the gaming world. He is an American Twitch streamer and a professional Fortnite Battle Royale player. You're famous on Twitch, with 7 million people. and YouTube with 4.6 million subscribers. He began airing on Twitch in 2016, primarily streaming Paragon, a third player online combat arena. His streams became more popular when he began streaming Fortnite Battle Royale in the second half of 2017. His considerable popularity occurred in 2018 when his following increased from 200,000 to 200,000 January to 3.2 million in June. In March 2019, Kabbani was paid an uns disclosed amount to stream Apex Legends. Kabbani's streams include a host of other popular streamers including, Pokimane and summit1g. 5. Rubius Twitch Stream: twitch.tv/rubius Rubén Doblas Gundersen often uses the pseudonym El Rubius, Rubius Z and elrubiusOMG in his game, but most people know him simply rubius on Twitch. He is probably known as a Spanish-Norwegian YouTube character who has a channel that mainly consists of games and vlogs. His YouTube channel currently has over 8.7 billion views and 38.8 million subscribers. Although his 6.6 million Twitch followers don't seem to matter by comparison, he still tries to occupy Twitch's fifth most-watched channel position. In July 2020, Rubius posted a teaser tweet, hinting that he would move to Twitch. He did this in the same style that Ninja did when he first showed he was moving from Twitch to Mixer. Apparently, Rubius is pulling the crowd at Twitch now. 6. Pokimane Twitch Stream: twitch.tv/pokimane the most popular female streamer on this list is Imane Anys, better known by the online alias Pokimane. She is a Moroccan-Canadian internet personality who has made a name for herself on both Twitch and YouTube, like many other successful streamers. She attended McMaster University, studied chemical engineering, but dropped out later to pursue a full-time streaming career. She began sublimation on Twitch in 2017, gaining her first 450,000 followers and entering Twitch's 100 most followers. That year, the Shorty Awards named her The Twitch Streamer of the Year. She first made her name playing Fortnite but has since diversified her play. She also spends a lot of time in Twitch's Just Chatting channels. Twitch selected Pokimane as one of the 15 ambassadors for TwitchCon 2018. 7. inTheTatman Twitch Stream: twitch.tv/timthetatman As well as having the seventh highest number of Twitch followers and the fourth most Twitch subscribers, TimTheTatman hosted the 11th most watched Twitch channel in the past year. AuronPlay Twitch Stream: Twitch.tv/auronplay Spanish-based Raúl Álvarez Genes airs as AuronPlay on both Twitch and YouTube. He boasts 5 million followers on Twitch, in addition to 25 million subscribers on YouTube. Twitch unexpectedly banned him on September 25, 2020, for just 23 minutes. Although they never explained why it was probably because of a tweet he made: streamer friends: don't watch hahahaha wedding videos a boy showed his a to the man who was filming the wedding. Presumably, the initial suspension was made wrong. AuronPlay tends to comment on videos with others and often combines social criticism, dark humor and comedy. The name AuronPlay is a component of Auron (a Final Fantasy character) and Play (a random word that appears in Álvarez's mind when choosing his username). 10. dakotaz Twitch Stream: twitch.tv/dakotaz dakotaz is the Twitch username for American streamer Brett Hoffman (not to be confused with the American death metal vocalist with a similar name). He played Fortnite: Battle Royale, although he now also streams other games, such as Among Us. Sometimes he abbreviates his alias DK and sometimes also uses Dark as an alias. He began streaming on Twitch in 2012, initially playing Infestation: Survivor Stories (later known as The War Z.) Dakotaz's Twitch and YouTube channels grew significantly, however, once he switched to playing Fortnite. He joined Team SoloMid (TSM) in January 2018 but stayed only one year. One of the odd things about Dakotaz is that he doesn't like to show his face in his broadcasts. He first showed off his face in 2018 after reaching one million subscribers. Recently, in 2020, he raised $21,000 for the Australian Fire charity and then extended the funding with Twitch, promising to show his face more often. He has a twin brother who also streamed Fortnite on Twitch under the name Drmkie. Dr.Kie.
